The Marshall Scholarship programme is a highly competitive, merit-based award for graduate study at a British university funded by the British Government.

Up to 50 new Marshall Scholarships are awarded each year. Each award allows recipients to study for a period of one, two, and in some cases three years at the graduate level at any university in the United Kingdom, in any discipline leading the award of a British university degree.

Applications must be endorsed by your undergraduate educational institution. Application forms are available online. Deadline: 28 September 2020
